OPERATIONS

Construction loading of planes and other fatigue details comprise the principle duties of the 437th Aviation Squadron. Personnel of this unit have been assigned to many departments throughout the Depot. Their jobs range from stock clerks to skilled technicians in aircraft engineering.

Activated at Brookley Field, Alabama, in Feb of 1944, the Squadron set sail for New Guinea the following Jul. In Aug, after almost five weeks on the high seas, the outfit arrived at its present base. Although confronted with mud and heavy rain falls, the Squadron completed construction of their camp area in less than one month.
