

735 SUPPLY CHAIN OPERATIONS GROUP

MISSION

735 SCMG exercises global command and control, providing weapon system spares management and acting as the single points of contact for supply chain customers in resolving warfighter spares support issues at the point of execution. In addition, the groups direct materiel and distribution support to meet critical needs by redirecting the source, direction, or speed of resupply and working with planners to change the priority of maintenance actions to meet changing warfighter requirements.

735 SCMG commander has the full scope of responsibility for directing the activities of the groups and is responsible for providing vision, direction, and policy for materiel management functions including spares, supplies, equipment, funds, transportation, operational planning, and centralized repair facilities (CRF) repair induction and distribution.

735 SCMG commander works with senior counterparts in other agencies on recommendations for policy development and procedures regarding group operations. The commander also oversees development of supply chain management goals and strategies for achieving short- and long-range materiel management and transformational goals and objectives.

EMBLEM

Squadron emblem

735 Supply Chain Operations Group emblem: Sable, a globe Celeste gridlined Argent, issuant bendwise sinister from sinister chief a lightning flash Or, below a flight symbol in chief ascending bendwise sinister Azure, issuing an arcing contrail to base bilaterally Gules and Azure, all within a diminished bordure Yellow. Attached below the shield, a White scroll edged with a narrow Yellow border and inscribed "735TH SUPPLY CHAIN OPERATIONS GP" in Blue letters. Ultramarine blue and Air Force yellow are the Air Force colors. Blue alludes to the sky, the primary theater of Air Force operations. Yellow refers to the sun and the excellence required of Air Force personnel. The globe symbolizes the unit's participation in the Air Force global support mission. The contrails sweeping around the globe represent the major regional conflicts the unit is prepared to support. The bolt of lightning represents military strength and wartime readiness. The flight symbol denotes the primary weapon system support provided by the Group. (Approved, 27 Aug 2008)
