On February 1st 1954, Lincoln AFB was officially activated and so was the 98th Air Base Group, in charge of running the field. The 98th Air Refueling Squadron was its first aircraft unit, arriving from Kansas the same month. The first major aircraft, a KC-97, made its appearance in Lincoln during April. During July, the 98th Bomb Wing arrived from Davis-Monthan AFB where it had disposed of its war-warry B-29 bombers from Japan where it served during the Korean War. Later, during November 1954, the 307th Bomb Wing had also arrived from Okinawa also after the unit's action over Korea. The same month, the 98th Air Base Group was de-activated and the new 818th Air Base Group took over its operations. The 818th Air Division took over control of the base during the month and assumed responsibility over the 307th and 98th Bomb Wings, Their respective Air-Refueling Squadrons and the entirety of Lincoln Air Force Base. Jurisdiction also moved that month from the 15th to the famous 8th Air Force.

Other elements at the base that were activated during the period were the Field Maintenance Squadrons, Periodic (later Organizational) Maintenance Squadrons, Armament and Electronic Squadrons, Headquarters Squadrons, a Material (Supply) Squadron, a Motor Vehicle (Transportation) Squadron, an Air Police (Combat Defense) Squadron, an Civil Engineering

(Installations) Squadron, a Food Services (Services) Squadron, a medical section, an Air Depot (Munitions Maintenance) Squadron as well as air-traffic control and air transport detachments.
