OPERATIONS

With the United States intervention in the Korean hostilities, the need for Stateside training of B-26 replacement crews was necessary. The 2215th Combat Crew Training Squadron was originated for this purpose on the 1st of August 1950 and was commanded by Lt. Col. John P. Crocker. On the 11th of August 1950 the first class of 43 officers and airmen completed their training and left immediately for Korea. During the earlier part of 1951, the Squadron was replaced by the the 4400th Combat Crew Training Group.
